

SHIFTING LINES

THE EVOLUTION OF POLITICAL DELINEATIONS IN FREEDOM'S FRONTIER

The names of locations or events in the management plan are of the present-day state name and county name unless otherwise noted. Historically, the names of locations, counties and territorial lines changed frequently. County names that have been used in the management plan may not be the same over the entire period of national significance.

Below is a series of images that shows the development of political boundaries in Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area. The area in green is the modern-day location of the heritage area. County lines are in blue, state and territorial lines are in black. This is provided both as a reference and as a potential interpretive lens. See the Power of Story for more information about interpretive lenses.
